Father Did Not See Child Hidden

Among Cornstalks.

(By Associated Press.)

LOCKPORT, N. Y. October 1.—A threeyear-old son of August Thurman, of Swormswile, had his right leg cut of and the left leg badly hurt in a corn cut, ter which his Inther was operating Thursday afternoon. The boy was playing about the shocks of corn, which his father was feeding into the cutter, and inally hid among them.

Illis father grasped a big armful of the stalks and cast them into the corn cutter, but did not notice that his son was hidden in the stalks until the child cried out in pain. He stopped the maboy's right leg.

SHAW AND THE CURRENCY SYSTEM

Must Have a Panic Before There Shall Be Any Change.

PROBLEMS UNSOLVED

The Money Market is Behaving Exceeding Well Under the Strain.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) .. NEW YORK, October 1,-The abounding optimism of Leslie M. Shaw, Secretary of the Treasury, is proverbial, but it was nover better exemplified than in his address to the Ohio Bankers Association, at Cleveland, on Thursday, After stating that in his opinion the currency system of the United States was the best in the world, he qualified his assertion by stating that the system was not perfect, and to cap the matter stated that the country does no appreciate the dan-ger that threatens from the imperfections which are inherent in this "best currency system of the world."

Most Illogical. Most Illogical.

To state that a currency system is the "best in the world" and in the same breath that it brought us to the verge of a panic on September 20, 1962, that its defects are a constant memore and that these defects stand little or no change of remedial igislation until the country shall have experienced a panic, due to the lack of clasticity in the circulating medium, is certainly most liberal. One can well imagine the contempt with which financiers at hoe annot abroad regard such utterances for if one thing is better known than another it is that the United States has the poorest currency system of any of the world's leading nations.

itions. It is in Secretary Shaw's remarks that It is in Secretary Shaw's remarks that "there will be no further currency legislation until we shall have experienced a panic, occasioned by that want of clasticity" that his singular optimism, asserts itself. We had just such a panic in 1893, arising, to be sure, out of the silver-purchasing act, but, during, its pendency and after its conclusion, out entire archale currency system passed under review, and the defects, admitted now by Secretary Shaw, were ventilated at great length.

For Monetary Reform.

For Monetary Reform. The country had its pante and the country had its agitation, and the Presidential campaign of 1896 was fought out on the lines of monetary reform. They elected their President in Mr. McKin-on the lines of monetary reform. They elected their President in Mr. McKinley, and what did they get in return for their panic, with all its terribid losses? Well, whatever it was, it was not so great a remedy or so great a change but that the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States stands up in a company of bankers at this stime, only nine years after the first sound money campaign, and not one year since a third campaign was terminated, in which sound money entered as a factor, and admits that evils are not corrected; that dangers, of which the public knows not of, threaten, and that panic only can bring legislative remedy.

Every one knows, of course, that something beneficial did result from the panic of 1893, but the most important of all, and the act that stopped the panic, occurred in the administration of President Cleveland, when the Sherman silver-purchase act was repealed. By legislative enactment the country irrevocably pledged itself to the gold standard, and took no other means to enforce it than by the say-so of Congress, it reand took no other means to enforce it than by the say-so of Congress. It remains a flat—nothing more—to this day. Problems Unsolved.

The week's developments have by no means determined the money market problems. It is admitted that in consequence of the severe strain of the week that the local money market behaves exceedingly well. But it is by no means determined that the problem is domestic. On the contrary, the firmer tendency noted everywhere, including in addition to the usual European markets, such remote controls as Stockholm, Calcutta, Vienna and Buenos Ayres, goes to indicate that it is a world problem. The era of chenp money appears to be over for the time being, the theory of gold production permanently altering money intess appears to be knocked on the head, advocates of the theory of a "new artists." Problems Unsolved.

No Outburst of Speculative Activity Noted.

(Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch and New York Herald.) (Copyright, by the New York Herald Co.) LONDON, October 1.—Though an outburst of speculative activity which was expected in some quarters at the conclusion of the holidays, has not yet put in its appearance, the market shows vome people who are beginning to think that after all the mind and are the mind are signs of broadening, Indeed, there are when people who are beginning to think that after all the mind of the public that after all the mind of the public furing the coming futurum campaign will not run so much of speculation as on investment and speculation have the moreover. This yiew is supported by the recent movement in such shares as Canadian Pacific and also by the marked improvement which has come over brewery, the marked improvement which has come over brewery, the market at the close of this week. The throwing over of this view is a difficulties. The throwing over of the weak source in the adequor to save the position was a foroided this week in connection with furing the first of the weak in the cause of the mysterious selling which was a subject of market discussion during the latter haif of the week put no save the position was afforded this week in the first of the week, but no actual crisis, it is said, its likely to be permitted to occur. The interests involved are much too large. to those members of the house who re-e, gnized that such a movement could not be longer delayed with safety, and that it might just as well have been nade when the markets were prepared for it, but this week the only market doubt was whether a rise of half or one per cent! would be decided on, and when it became known that the directors had lifted the rate from 3 per cent. to 4 per cent. there was a pretty general feeling of relief, and business at once became quite brisk.

production permanently altering money rates appears to be knocked on the head, advocates of the theory of a "new solid to the proven themselves false prophots.

We have done our part, to what may turn out mischlevous, by manufacts firg millions and millions of bank notes and increasing the national bank circulation, at a time of easy money the world over. We have utilized this as a nosis to enormously expand our credit obligation, and to inflate stock prices to the highest level in the country's history, using these fictitious prices as a basis of credit inflation. Money may not come back as readily as some persons believe, and if by so doing it cheapens rates, with the demand for funds abroad, the tide of gold may flow against us.

New York's Demand. The weakness in Americans is due to the demand for money in New York on the idea that the advance in the bank late will prevent the United States setting any more gold from London. However necessary these may be for inforcing of the oush reserves of the New York banks, that does not cause much concern here, for it is argued the trade conditions in the United States are favorable that in the long run these are bound to teh.

Foreigners in Exchange.

Foreign members of the house have lind quite a big advertisement this week through the medium of the city registration courts. According to statements, there made, it has always been assumed that if man was a member of the stock exchange he must necessarily be an Englishman. It is complained, however, that frigners are so clever that they get into the stock exchange without being naturalized, and it is alloged that it is impossible to stop them. This is the view of the registration officials, but the stock exchange committee has not yet made any pronouncement on the subject.

THE DEFICIENCY IN RUSSIA

As Compared With Last Year, It Is 190,000,000 Bushels. Corn Cheaper.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) CHICAGO, October 1.—Current world conditions seem to be much in favor of there are obstacles in the way. Thus far it has been impossible to focus the attention of foreign consumers long enough to convince them that they should don't have to be convinced now, and so long as they can fill present requirewheat from Manitoba at seven cents cheaper than it can be purchased here, cheaper than it can be purchased here, all the arguments about a Russian shortage come to naught.

There may come a time when Russia will be on the verge of famine, and when there will be a government prohibition against any further exportation of wheat, but the fact remains that wheat is being shipped out of that country now and that other nations are taking care of current needs by buying there.

Russian Deficiency.

Latest official reports make the Russian deficiency as compared with last year's supply 190,000,000. Those are very important figures, but how much they are destined to mean as price-makers of wheat in this country is a ficbatable question that cannot be decided, because there are so many future conditions entering into the equation. There is a crop coming along from Argentine. It may be a large one, if the locusts do not ravage it too severely. The acreage there is much larger than that of a year ago, and with fair luck, the yield should be bigger, granting considerable headway is made by the locust pest. The exportable surplus from Argentine will stand in the way of successful American competition abroad.

The 75,000,000 bushels generally accredited to Canada for export adds another important obstacle to American sales abroad. Australia also is to be rockoned with in the course of time. Just now the shipments from the Argentine country are decreasing, and those from India and Australia are small.

Support of Values.

Whether or not conditions abroad are destined to help prices materially in this country before the first of the year, those same conditions, actual and prospective, are the main support of values. Take their influence away, and it is hard to tell what would happen to the markets here. There is not a great deal in the home situation just now to give strength. There are evidences that the immense demand for whoat by millers all over the country has about run its course for the time and that the cry for flour has been heeded well up to the safety line.

Week before last, according to the Northwestern Miller, the mills of Minneapolls turned out the biggest consignment of flour for a like period for ever a year. Many of the mills worked Sunday and nights. Grinding last week has been on a similar scale, and sales have been leave at the prices asked. Stocks Support of Values.

day and nights. Grinding hist week has been on a similar scale, and sales have been large at the prices asked. Stocks in the cast are reported light in places, but, on the whole, there is a tendency toward an abridgement of the flour trade.

The Northwest Crop.

tween the seeding of the new crop and the gathering of the corn will give the farmer opportunity to market his wheat, and favorable weather, with good country reads, is counted on to enlarge deliveries to primary markets. Threshing from the stack is now general in that region.

There are still strong speculative interests at work in the wheat market, with buillah sentiments. What the undercurrent of thought is or what programme has been mapped out is for the speculator to guess, but one may not go far wrong in predicting that the European shortage is to be worked to the maximum in the coming weeks.

Fight Over Corn.

the maximum in the coming weeks.

Fight Over Corn.

Corn is at the mercy of a tug of war contest between a powerful bull and bear interests, and the lesser lights are content to look on curiously and confine their speculation as to the outcome of the main battle.

Looking over the cornfields, reading the weather maps and digesting the prospects of an unimpaired crop of unparallelled magnitude, the bear side seems to have the better of the argument. The receipts of old corn are not heavy, but it will be only a short time until the new crop can be drawn upon for commercial needs.

The general opinion is that corn will be much cheaper, because it is not believed that any bull faction is powerful enough to overcome the brilliant crop prospects. There is already some murketing of new corn, and fully 85 percent, of the entire crop is out of the way of frost damage. Wet weather may impair the quality and prompt large feeding operations, but it cannot cut down the yield.

The end of the week found the oats cash demand disappointing and the receipts liberal. Those influences, together with weakness of other grains, moved longs to sell and encouraged corresponding activity among the shorts. There is a healthy tone to the market, although stooks are increasing, and prodictions of a heavier movement are likely to be fulfilled. Shipping and export space.

Packers continue to dominate the provision market, and there is little change to the marget in the general situation. Total packing

No. 2 Park Street At Auction, Wednesday, Oct. 4th, 5 P. M. This is a well-built, detached frame dwelling occupied by a good tenant, who has been in it seven years. It is just outside of present city limits, and will be worth much more than it will now bring, when annexed. It is right in the line of Western growth, and will yearly grow in value. It is now bringing fine returns on amount expected, and as a safe investment, it is very attractive.
